BATTER LINE OF GERMANS IN ARTOISE

FRENCH BEAR BRUNT OF FIGHTING IN HAND GRENADE AT TACK ON TEUTON TRENCHES.

NO NEWS OF BRITISH

Believe English Forces Now Numbering a Million Men, Are Consolidating Their Positions in Territory Captured.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

London, Oct. 1.—The French are bearing the brunt of the fighting now in progress on the western front. They are hammering at the second German line in Champagne, in the direction of the Grand Arc railway, and at the same time dropping bombs on the line and stations to prevent the Germans from bringing up reinforcements.

Absence of news from the British apparently indicates that these forces are occupied with consolidating their positions in the strip of territory recently won.

Million British Troops.

The British forces now in France are estimated at around a million men, which will be increased by 500,000 daily, lengthening the number of days of the offensive, notwithstanding measures the price paid by the British for their recent offensive move.

There is no notable change on the battle front of the east. Vienna announced that the third Austrian war loan will bear interest of five and a half per cent.

Bulgaria has not replied to the suggestion of Greece, that she demobilize.

Still Advancing.

In the Artoise district the French made further progress by means of attacks with hand grenades on German trenches. Announcement to this effect was made today in the war office.

In the Champagne a German counter-attack near Maisons de Chambonneau was checked. The Germans violently bombed French trenches near Super north of Aisne, but made no infantry attack.

Marchand's Bravery.

Brigadier General Marchand was marching calmly at the head of his column, with a walking stick in his hand and pipe in his mouth, when he was wounded by a shell splinter, in the fighting in the Champagne district last Saturday, according to a young infantryman who was beside him when he fell.

Prince Killed in Battle.

Capo Prince Henry of Holstein was killed in fighting in Champagne on Sept. 25. He was thirty-seven years old and an officer in an infantry regiment.

east of Souchez, north of Nieuville and in Champaign failed.

The war office announced during September there were captured on the Russian front, 96,000 men, 37 canons and 298 machine guns.

The Hague, Oct. 1.—The Cologne Gazette declares that the Germans on the western front are opposed by forces between four and five times as strong as their own.

"German machine guns and canons," says this newspaper, "mow down the enemy, but despite the mountains of bodies the French columns continued to advance. Enemy supplies provided with ration from eight to ten days and apparently counted on marching through Luxembourg and Belgium immediately."

"The offensive on this front has so far resulted in a complete defeat for the enemy."

"Despite the fact that those mowed down by German machine guns at barbed wire entanglements, the British repeatedly sent further troops to the attack."

FIND FILM COMPANY BROKE TRUST LAWS

Decision of United States District Court Upholds Government's Decision.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Philadelphia, Oct. 1.—The United States district court today decided the anti-trust dissolution suit against the Motion Picture Patents company in favor of the Motion Picture Patents company. It was charged by the government that it controlled most of the moving picture patents in the United States and also had a large interest in the American rights in foreign patents.

"As to England, the under-secretary stated that its future was still unknown, but a solution of this difficult problem must be found which will render it certain that Belgium will not be utilized for purposes of England. Germany has always desired peace, and now wished a guarantee that will not be in the future another as it was in the present."

"Poland's future also is unknown," Dr. Zimmerman said. He expressed the conviction that no one would be able to oppose Germany's will."

Holland Has Nothing to Fear, But Fate of Belgium and Poland is Not Known, Says Dr. Zimmerman.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Berlin, Oct. 1.—Germany's attitude toward Belgium, Holland and Poland was outlined in an interview given by Dr. Alfred Zimmerman, under-secretary for foreign affairs, to a local press. This interview reproduced in the Lokal Anzeiger, was given out as follows:

"Dr. Zimmerman insisted Holland had nothing to fear from Germany. He said Germany would not violate the neutrality of Holland, or interfere with her political or economical independence. Germany appreciates the fact that Holland is maintaining strict neutrality."

SEND DOZEN FRENCH FLYERS TO ENGLAND

Will Assist British Airmen In Warding Off Attacks of German Zeppelins.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

London, Oct. 1.—Nearly a dozen of French aviators, all picked men, have been sent to England to aid British flyers in keeping off Zeppelins. At least such is the report current in London. The air patrol of Paris has been remarkably effective. The French aviators, it is said, are filling the English flyers in the art of pursuing Zeppelins in a manner that the French have proved effective.

The French and English method are widely different. The English, it is said, used to persist in spiraling upward, when first a Zeppelin was sighted. This process required considerable time, during which the fast moving aviator had time to escape.

The French method, which it is understood the English are adopting, calls for the aviator to clear the houses on first sighting the Zeppelin, then to shoot ahead at this comparatively low altitude in the same direction as the Zeppelin.

Gradually the desired altitude is reached and meantime the Zeppelin is not only sighted but the aviator, finally achieving a height greater than the Zeppelin, begins to drop his bombs or fires with his machine gun.

AUSTRIAN OFFICERS SENT TO BULGARIA

Independents Elected.

Los Angeles, Oct. 1.—Heads of independent motion picture companies were elected today by the members of the U.S. district court at Philadelphia had rendered a decision adverse to the Motion Picture Patents company. The effect of the decision, it was said, would be to open for the first time a free market to producers of picture plays.

FIRE NEUTRAL BARK; TOW CREW TO SHORE

Norwegian Ship Burned by German Subsea Crew and Then Give Sailors Aid.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Copenhagen, Oct. 1.—The Norwegian bark Actic, 563 tons gross, with cargo of crops from Kragero to Leith, was set on fire last night by a German submarine at a point twenty miles south of the Naze, and went up, some even crossing the Souchez river, and going to Antres, but the Germans had up reserves and tried to surround us. This maneuver was foiled, however, by our officers, who drew our men back to the first line capered.

The bulk of our men followed the Germans, who were running like hares through the woods. They soon captured the second line of trenches in the middle of the forest, and went up, some even crossing the Souchez river, and going to Antres, but the Germans had up reserves and tried to surround us. This maneuver was foiled, however, by our officers, who drew our men back to the first line cap-

ered.

Shells Mow Down Forest.

During the night the Germans fortified themselves in the woods, but at daybreak our artillery stopped their work by furious bombardment. The evening before the forest presented the ordinary aspect, but in a few minutes all was changed like magic. One after another the trees were mowed down by shells, and soon the woods were transformed into a field of ruins, emerging from a jungle of branches.

The German artillery was not idle either, but sent against us a stream of shells which plowed up the earth all around us, without doing much harm. Explosive shells were varied occasionally by shrapnel. This fire was born philosophically, for since we have their new steel helmets our men don't fear wounds in the head. A fragment of shell tore through one man's helmet but its force was so great that he escaped with a grazed scalp.

"At 4 o'clock in the afternoon the guns ceased firing, and we were ordered to attack again. Machine guns which the Germans placed on their flanks soon were put into action. It was difficult going in the woods. The men stumbled over branches, but on the other hand, holes torn in the ground by shells gave shelter against machine gun fire. These men were cunningly concealed, and covered with steel plates. The bark, protruding through narrow slits, were visible at a distance, and they sent us a withering fire, but our men did not hesitate. From behind we stumps and from the pits they kept hurling a constant stream of bombs and soon drove the Germans out of the woods, which remained in our hands."

Germans Claim Progress.

Berlin, Oct. 1.—The Germans have ceased their attacks and the Germans have made further progress north of Loos, the war office announced today. All French attacks

RED SOX WILL GO INTO THE SERIES PRIME FAVORITES

Plain, Unvarnished Dope Gives the Edge to the Boston Hard Fighting Team Over Moran's Philies.

By George R. Holmes.

New York, Oct. 1.—On plain, unvarnished "dope" the Red Sox from this comparatively early viewpoint, stack up stronger than the Phillies in the coming world's clash, and probably will, baring injuries, go into the October classic as big a favorite as ever did the duckpins over the Giants, or the Indians over the Browns.

It wasn't luck that gave Bill Carrigan a pennant winner this year. It was plain ordinary grit, plus a couple of tons of sheer fighting, and some rattling good consistent baseball. No manager ever faced an April getaway with a stiffer field to fight against than did this same Bill Carrigan.

Carrigan's new sadly cramped White Sox team, which had been built around Cobb, started with a chugging start reckoned to be the class of the circuit.

Started well and set the pace until June, when they had been squelched, a new ogre rose to confront the Boston intentor—the Tigers. And it was some ogre. Cobb was playing the best baseball of his scintillating career. Crawford was slugging with all his old time power again, and was looking like a pend, and Jennings had an infield, his first since 1898. All this array was backed up with a fair pitching staff.

But Bill Carrigan came through when the time came for a "crucial" series—like the recent one with the Tigers at Boston, which really gave him the pennant—he went out and won games. There was no cracking under the strain.

Boston has worked its way into the big Tilt through the classiest field that ever represented Ban Johnson's loop. The Philies have won a pennant from a field that probably is the weakest that ever represented the National circuit, and that's taking no credit away from Pat Moran, either because he deserves all the roses that are doled out by the heads.

Both the favorites in the National League dropped by the wayside. The Giants never were in the hunt, and the Braves, handicapped by injuries and suspensions, put up a game, but futilely.

Brooklyn threatened for a while, but their opposition was not of the steady variety. The Philies have not played flashy ball. They displayed dash to take the lead early in the season, but since then have played mostly half心事 in the belief that the energies didn't have the stuff for a spurt that would overtake them.

They were right, for had either the Braves or Superbas possessed a drive of any power at all, the Philies could have been unseated at almost any stage of the race.

And because of this—because Bill Carrigan's clan has fought its way to the top—will the Red Sox be beaten while Moran has had comparable easy sailing? Because of this, the American league entry will barring unforeseen events, go into the series a favorite, if for no other reason.

DEFEAT OF TIGERS WINS FOR RED SOX THE LEAGUE TITLE

Carrigan's Crew Champions of America When Detroit Is Whipped By St. Louis—Cubs Slipping Down.

Lack of games in both the American and National league Thursday did not cause much change in the percentage column. The Tigers slipped back half a game, being now four and a half games from the Red Sox, as the St. Louis team turned on them and administered an 8 to 2 wallop. Boston became the American league champions through the defeat, although idle.

Today the Red Sox cross bats with Washington and should have easy going from now until the close of the season, being well able to prepare for the world series.

The Chicago Cubs slipped from fourth to fifth place yesterday, when the Cincinnati Reds finally turned and slew them 3 to 2 after being subjected to six straight games of walloping by the Bresnan crew. The Phillips, with the pennant won, took things easy and were defeated by the Braves by the count of 8 to 2, which puts the Braves seven games from the top. The White Sox played an exhibition game at Peru, Indiana, which they won by the score of 2 to 1.

All Over Now.

Detroit, Oct. 1.—Boston became the American league champion yesterday though not playing, through Detroit's loss of the final game with St. Louis. St. Louis' Wellman won his eighth game of the year from the Tigers and would not have been scored on but for three errors bunched in one inning. With a single exception every game won from the local team by St. Louis this season has been pitched by Wellman. He has been beaten by the Tigers but once.

The result was determined in the fifth when five hits, including a double and triple, were bunched with a pass for five tallies.

Can Afford To.

Boston, Oct. 1.—The Philadelphia, with the National league championship won, let up a big today, and the Braves took the game easily 8 to 2. Hughes held the new champions to three hits, but an error by Maranville in the third inning paved the way to the two runs that were scored on Cravath's triple.

Down Again.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Erratic fielding by Chicago enabled Cincinnati to win the final game of the series for the year.

Ty Cobb probably will lead the American league in most everything this year. He is sure to have a high batting average and base-stealing record and incidentally will be rung better. Cobb therefore, is entitled to be termed the best ball player in the league. He has had an exceptionally good year, because he has not missed any games to speak of.

Navy Eleven In Good Shape For Season's Gridiron Battles

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 1.—Although the Naval Academy players under

Captain Miles have been at full practice but a short time, the squad is in better shape than is usually the case at this time of year. This is accounted for by the number of experienced men available and the unusual amount of work done during the winter and spring. Besides, an unusually large number of likely men in the new class are available.

Early last winter many of the football men who were available took up light practice and others were engaged in some other line of athletics which kept them in condition. During the spring a number of the football men rowed or played baseball or lacrosse, but as the different sports finished their seasons the football men reported to Lieutenant Ingram, the head coach, for football work. Toward the close of the season he had the entire football squad for some time.

As soon as the new class formed the football men worked out twice a week, and for three weeks past daily practice has been the rule. Thus the squad is more ready to get down to real football than any previous squad in the history of the academy.

Miles, who captains the team this season, naturally is an quarterback.

Toward the close of the season his work enabled him to dispense such a sterling player as Mitchell in that position. He is strong and fast handled the team well and developed into a brilliant runner with the ball.

Naval coaches have followed the policy of singling out backs, except their quarters, at any position, behind the line, and they should have no difficulty keeping to that policy this sea-

WHO IS CARRANZA?

With American soldiers being shot down in cold blood along the Texan border, armed bandits pillaging ranches and killing American citizens and escaping across the Rio Grande to safety on the southern side, the question arises, "Who is Carranza?" It is not hard to answer, for all Mexico knows that Venustiano Carranza is a comparatively weak old politician, who has achieved prominence through the military support of Villa and President Wilson's implacable hatred of Huerta, and who is kept in power by the jealousy of his subordinates, who despise him, but who are willing to recognize him as "First Chief" because they regard him as weak and incapable of maintaining his supremacy when they shall decide to terminate it. For over two years he has preached intolerance, confiscation and hatred, even teaching his doctrine of anarchy in states which had already yielded to him without resistance. He has disengaged numerous of ideals he does not entertain, perpetrated or sanctioned and advocated every form of crime and has forfeited every particle of the respect of the better element in Mexico. Under his supervision property has been seized on all sides without compensation and he has continuously proclaimed the right of confiscation, so that farmers have been robbed of their crops and their stock and fearful outrages have been perpetrated on their wives and daughters. It is these facts which lead those who are informed regarding conditions in Mexico to take the bluest possible view of President Wilson's experiment.

HIT THE LINE.

When the time comes for the final days of the forthcoming campaign for new members for the Y. M. C. A., the slogan should be, "Hit the Line Hard." With the men and women of the city united in their efforts to bring about an increased membership in the association the project is sure to succeed. The association holds a unique position in every community and has long been a prominent feature of Janesville civic life. It is going to be even more prominent now than in the past so "hit the line" and unite with the organization that will be of benefit to every member.

Why does he hold him arms that way?
And set me like a trap?

He cannot help it, so they say:

It is the package habit.

It was the hottest August 23 in the history of the weather bureau.

There was no hotter man in the city than Enoch Wispers, for thirty-two people by actual count had asked him the past hour if it was hot enough for him, and each time he had been asked the temperature had leaped ten degrees higher with rage, and stayed there.

"I must get away from my fellow-men or else commit a crime!" he cried, and boarded a trolley car bound for the country.

"Hot enough for you?" asked the conductor pleasantly.

"Not for you!" replied Enoch wildly, and leaped backwards off the car, his fingers clutching for the fellow's throat.

"The next day one dies," he vowed, and rushed into a pawnbroker's office. "Give me a loaded revolver," he demanded.

The pawnbroker gave it to him.

"Is it hot enough for you?" he said.

FIVE HUNDRED MOOSE IN BELOIT CELEBRATION

REPORTED TO THE GAZETTE.

Beloit, Wis., Oct. 1.—About five hundred Moose took part in the celebration and initiation service of the Beloit Lodge here last evening, which marks the close of a successful campaign for new members. About fifty Moose from Janesville took part in the parade which formed shortly after eight o'clock and marched through the main street, led by the Beloit Boys' band, Chief of Police Quigman and eight patrolmen. The police officers were all members of the Moose organization. Supreme Dictator E. J. Henning of Cedarburg gave the principal address after the banquet. A class of ninety-one was initiated by the Rockford degree team and Mayor Adams was the candidate of honor. It is probable that the membership campaign will be extended as the Beloit Lodge wish at least six hundred members.

It costs six thousand dollars for one of those periscopes that Uncle Sam is equipping his submarines with. Some costly top, but still its use in connection with submarine warfare is of untold value. However, by the time the present war is over England will have solved that submarine problem to the queen's taste, so why buy periscopes?

Chicago has lost its famous downtown church, but wisely the wardens and church officials have decided to rebuild at once, so the loss will be gained when the final stone is laid in the new edifice. However, there is something pathetic over the destruction.

It is reported that the new church will be built on the site of the old.

David Menzies was released by the Janesville police from the city hall police station private cell about four o'clock yesterday afternoon, where he had been detained since Monday on the instructions of the police state. District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie said the boy had been held on warrant issued charging him of an assault upon the girl. Constipation Is the Cause of Many Ailments.

During the MILK and REST TREATMENT there is nearly always a gain in weight in the thin or emaciated there is a substantial gain.

But of far greater value than the mere increase in weight is the improvement in the BLOOD both in QUANTITY and QUALITY and the changes it brings about in diseased organs.

To a marked degree this is true of the condition of the lower bowel—known as constipation and piles.

The above treatment is the only perfect and natural cure that I know of.

On no other diet can the bowels be restored to their natural functions.

ONE MAN'S PLEASURE ANOTHER'S MARTYRDOM.

Every one has heard that one man's food may be another man's poison. As a result we recognize that a taste for strawberries, damson plums or even baked beans, may not be universal.

What we do not always recognize is that one man's pleasure may be another's martyrdom. I know of men who will find the keenest enjoyment in dangling a line over the end of a dock or the side of a boat, fishing for flounders. I know of other men who find fishing, at least in this A. B. C. form, insufferable boredom.

That Ungrateful Man.

One of my friends told me recently of a friend her husband brought for a week end to the place where they are spending the summer. "We took him automating in the morning and in the afternoon Bill took him out in his boat. It was a lovely day and Bill enjoyed every minute of it. Bill has such a capacity for enjoyment. But that friend of his seemed more dead than alive. Of course he pretended to be having a good time, but I could see that it was only pretense. I told Bill that I would never invite that man here again if I were he."

It so happened that I got "that man's" side of it afterward. He had rather looked forward to that week end. He visioned a nice cool Sunday spent roaming in the woods or lying in the hammock, a period of relaxation that to him spelt the article of recreation.

And His Un-Thoughtful Host.

"Bill meant well, of course," he said, with a laugh. "Oh, I know it's a horrible thing to say, but he deserves it. I use an automobile all week long myself. I announced that I was going to lie in the hammock. But I never had the chance. Bill and Mrs. Bill were soon having a good time. To their mind tearing over the road on a pretense of enjoying the scenery (which I never really saw, Bill went so fast) was having a good time. I don't suppose it ever occurred to them that it wasn't mine."

"The afternoon in the power canoe was even worse. I'd never have gone near the place if I'd known Bill owned such a thing. I've got an unreasoning fear of the water, because I was once tipped out of the canoe and came very near being drowned. Every now and then I wake up in the throes of nightmare in which I dream I'm drowning. I told all this to Bill, but he simply couldn't get my viewpoint—he insisted that canoeing was absolutely safe if one only knew how. It was rough and every time wave hit us I stuck in my shoes and said my prayers while Bill shouted, 'Isn't it beautiful?'" In my ears.

Even As You Are I.

This is probably an extreme case. Still I think there are a great many people who are keen about some form of pleasure, and keener still to have other people share this with them. They simply cannot comprehend that they are people who do not care to ride in automobiles, or fish or play cards or go sailing or do whatever else looms large in their eyes, as a yielder of pleasure.

To escape doing something you don't want to do, when someone with the best intentions in the world is set on having you do it, is difficult. Most people will succumb, rather than act the boor. But they do it under internal protest, hoping that some day the kindly, enthusiastic Bills and Mrs. Bills will see the light.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Very Refined "Cold" Microbes.

Another new cause of "colds" is another really and truly refined coryza germs or rhinitis microbes or "cold" bugs, you can take your pick of terms. An investigation—well, almost—said a majority by the name of Kruse has discovered that the virus of many cases of coryza (these "colds") is interchangeable like that of infantile paralysis and certain other infectious diseases.

Kruse diluted the secretion in acute "cold" with fifteen times its volume of salt solution and passed the mixture through an unglazed porcelain filter. The filtered material was instilled into the noses of twelve healthy volunteers, and in from one to three days afterward four of them came down with the snuffles.

Not satisfied with this list of casualties, the savant diluted the secretion with twenty times its volume of salt solution, filtered it as before, instilled a wee sample into the nostrils of thirty-six victims and had not satisfied his desire seeing some of them languishing with acute sneezes within the next few days.

All of which is of very little or no significance to us, except in so far as it serves to call attention to the many, many kinds of "colds" on the market, and perhaps to accent any little emphasis we may have already placed upon the contagiousness of all "colds."

Many of our readers still harbor the great delusion, do we hope they will never again do, that the last some "colds" can be passed from person to person by the mere transference of a fleck of the nasal secretion—as, for instance, in an open-face sneeze.

These who still live in close confinement during bad weather and in the colder part of the year, for fear of catching cold, are perhaps too willing to close their minds now, but let them be sure still capable of fitting their theories with our facts. We would unhesitatingly recommend an absolute disregard of weather conditions as a real and proved factor of good health.

Household Hints..

OYSTERS BETTER THAN IN DAYS OF INDIANS

Under the head of "The Food That Has Gone Up," the United States department of commerce has issued a bulletin on oysters. Before the days of the white men, the Indians of North America counted oysters a very important article of daily food. It is said, digging and smoking them, straining them on twigs and using them in barter with their inland neighbors.

On the bank of a main river where there are now no oysters, there is said to be a mound containing some 7,000,000 bushels of shells.

The shipment of oysters is now under government inspection and Uncle Sam guarantees that they are better and more sanitary than ever before. If cooked, as the majority of oysters are in this country, they are doubly safe.

The bulletin contains a variety of tested recipes of which these are a few:

Oyster Cocktails—Have oysters very cold. Purify not more than six each cocktail, glass or sherbet cup, and just before sending to the table, cover with a dressing made in the following way: Mix together one tablespoon mushroom cups, one tablespoon strained lemon juice, five drops tabasco sauce, and salt to taste. This quantity will make three cocktails. Serve thin slices of brown bread and celery with the cocktails.

A Sure Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid soap from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, sticky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

THE TABLE.

Stuffed "Vegetable Marrow"—Select a large, rather hot squash. Cut it in halves, remove the seeds and remove center. Fill cavities with mixture of cooked calf's liver (chopped finely) and mushrooms (if desired); moisten with a broth or cream after it has been seasoned to taste. Tie halves of the squash together and boil in equal parts of water and milk. When tender separate the halves and just before serving pour over a sauce made from the water in which the vegetable was boiled.

Cream Salad Dressing (original)—Place one cup vinegar in pan to heat. Now rub well together one heaping tablespoon sugar, one level tablespoon flour, one level teaspoon dry mustard; add slowly one cup sweet milk. Add this to vinegar and stir constantly until well cooked and smooth. Beat well white of one egg, add yolk and beat and while above is not add it to egg a little at a time and stir well.

Peach Whip—Three peaches, one-half cup granulated sugar, beaten white of one egg. Peel peaches and mash with potato masher, add sugar and beaten white of one egg. Beat with whip for twenty-five minutes.

MUFFLERS ARE FALL FASHION THIS YEAR

Women and Girls Are Like an Auto This Fall—Must Have a Muffler To Be in the Swim.

By Margaret Muson.

If you want to be a dashing Little run about this year Pray don't cut out your muffler. They are very smart, my dear.

New York, Oct. 1.—Mufflers up a little closer even if these are dog days. In mid summer and fall, you won't be too cold if white fox neck pieces of the Fourth of July, surely a little thing like a worsted muffler can't put you out of the running now. Frostrated victims of the hottest day of the season seeking the solace of a long cold draught pleasantly attired with cubes of ice in a smart hotel nearly swooned at the appearance of a chic young flapper in a Chinese tasseled hat swathed to the nose in a wide fringed ostrich feather red and white striped like the American flag. Since then though the heat abates not mufflers increase mightily.

Some hectic hued affairs they are too in glowing combinations of stripes and spots and splashes while some are one color on one side and another color on the other. ITCHING, BLISTERED SKIN-ERUPTION ALL HIS LIFE, NOW CURED

Nor, 19, 1914.—"All my life, until about seven ago, I was troubled with blisters and sores over my entire body. The itching and burning was terrible, and I could hardly sleep. I used many treatments that were unsuccessful and did not give me any relief. I started using Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap and they helped me wonderfully. I WAS RELIEVED AT ONCE, and after about two dozen applications I can say that I was free and cured of that awful disease. My skin now is as clear as anybody's."—(Signed) Geo. Whitcher, Jr., R. F. D. No. 54, Caldonia, N. Y. Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap are sold by all druggists.

IS YOUR TOILET SOAP SAFE?

Many toilet soaps contain harsh, injurious alkali. Resinol Soap contains absolutely no free alkali, and to it is added the Resinol medication. This gives it soothing, healing properties which clear the complexion, comfort tender skins and keep the hair healthy.

An Easy Way to Increase Weight

Good Advice for Thin Folks. The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless "flesh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

There is a preparation known to reliable druggists almost everywhere which seemingly embodies the missing elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This modern treatment is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh-builders. Sargol aims through regenerative, re-constructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to the starved, broken-down cells and tissues of your body. You can readily picture what result this amazing transformation should produce as with increased weight the cheeks fill out, hollows about neck, shoulders and bust disappear and from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh is added to the body. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. Leading druggists of this vicinity have it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

NOTE.—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.—Advertisement.

The Battle-Cry

CHAPTER III.

It is related in the history of the Hatfield-McCoy feud, which burst out between neighbors over a stray pig, and claimed its toll of lives through half a century, that one of the Hatfield girls wrote on a white pillar at the front of her often bereaved house: "There is no place like home."

The sequel tells that a cynical traveler passing that way reflected on the anomalies of that dwelling and added in postscript: "Leastways not this side of hell."

The story of the Hatfield-McCoy feud is in many ways that of other "wars" which have made of the roof-tree of the eastern divide a land beleaguered and unique.

In the war between the Havays and the McBriars there was more than the forgotten episode of a stray razorback which was not surrendered to its lawless owners. They had for decades hated and killed each other with a fidelity of bitterness that made all their truces and intermarriages fail of permanent peace.

Between the territories where they had originally settled stretched a barrier of hills broken by only one gap. The McBriars had made their first habitations east of that ridge and gap where the waters ran toward the sea. The Havays had set up their power to the west, where the creeks and springs fed the rivers that went down to the Blue-Grass and to Tennessee. Had the two clans been content to remain respectively on the sunrise and sunset slopes of the backbone, they might never have clashed, but there were bright-eyed women to the west and east. Feminine Havay eyes lured McBriar suitors, and McBriar girls seemed to the Havay men worth any dare that fate might set. So it has been since young Montagues and Capulets ignored deadlines—and long before. Smoke went up from cabins on both sides that housed men and women of both clans. Hatred scattered and set up new points of infection all along Tribulation and beyond its headwaters.

In Civil war and subsequent politics a line of fierce cleavage had yawned between them—and each faction had been a power.

It was to the leadership of such a clan that Bad Anse had succeeded when hardly twenty-one by the death of a father whose end had not come upon a bed of illness.

It was to the herding of such a flock that he had ridden away from the cabin of Fletch McNash on the night when the girl's scornful taunt followed him.

It was an unfortunate thing that Cal Douglas should, on a February afternoon, have shot to death his brother-in-law, Noah Watt, even if, as Cal earnestly assured the jury, "he was jest obligeed an' beholden ter do it." All the circumstances of the affair were inopportune for his kinsman and the kinsmen of the man who died with a bullet through his vitals.

Cal bore a name for surly character, and even in a land where grudge-bearing is a religion he was deemed ultra-fanatical in fanning the flame of hatred. Noah Watt himself was little loved by either the Havays, into whose family he had married, or the McBriars, from whom he sprang. Neighbors told of frequent and violent bickerings between the man and his shrewish wife, who was the twin sister of Cal Douglas.

"Cal Douglas an' Noey Watt's woman air as much alike as two peas in a pod," went neighborhood pronouncement. "They air both soured on mankind an' they glories in human misery."

Had the fight on that winter evening ended in the death of both participants, McBriars and Havays would alike have called it a gentle riddance, and dropped the matter where it stood. But since a Havay had slain a McBriar and the Havay still lived it could not, in honor, be so dropped. It left an uneven score.

Since the mountaineer has little to do in the winter and spring save gossip, the affair grew in importance with rehearsing, and to each telling was added new features. It was significantly pointed out east of the ridge that Noah had incurred the displeasure of Bad Anse Havay by the suspicion of tale-bearing to old Milt McBriar. It was argued that the particular wife-beating which led to the tragedy might have passed as uneventfully as several similar episodes heretofore, had not the heads of the Havays made it a pretext for eliminating a McBriar who dwelt in their midst and carried news across the ridge to his own people.

For several years the feud had slept, not the complete sleep of death, but the fitful, simmering sleep of cautious animosity. But neither clan felt so overwhelmingly strong as to court an issue just yet and, realizing the desperate quality of any outbreak, both Milt McBriar "over you" and Anse Havay over here had guarded the more belligerent kinsmen with jealous eye. They had until now held them checked and leashed, though growling.

For these reasons the trial of Cal Douglas had been awaited with a sense of crisis in the town of Peril where it might mean a pitched battle. So it had been awaited, too, up and down the creeks and branches that crept from the ragged hills, where men were leading morbid lives of isolation and nursing grudges.

During the three days that the suspense continued each recess of court found the long-limbed frame of Milt McBriar tilted back in a split-bottom chair on the flagstones at the front of the hotel. His dark face and piercing eyes gazed always thoughtfully and very calmly off across the dusky town to the reposeful languor of the piled-up purple skyline. Likewise, each recess found seated at the other end of the same house-front, the shorter, heavier figure of a fair-haired man with ruddy face and sandy mustache.

Never did he appear there without two companions, who remained at his right and left. Never did the dark giant speak to the florid man, yet never did either fail to keep a glance directed toward the other.

The man of the sandy hair was Breck Havay, next to Bad Anse the most influential leader of the clan. His influence here in Peril made or unmade the officers of the law.

When these two men came together as opposing witnesses in a homicide case the air was fraught with elements of storm.

"Thar's war a-brewin'," commented a native, glancing at the quietly seated figures one noon. "An' them fellers air in ther bilin'!"

CHAPTER IV.

Physical exhaustion will finally tell even over such handicaps as a mountain feather bed and the fumes of a backwoods cabin.

If Juanita Holland did not at last actually fall asleep, she drifted into a sort of nightmare come from which she awoke with a start.

She wondered if she had really screamed aloud as her eyes opened and stared at the rafters, but little Dawn's sleeping breath rose and fell undisturbed at her side and the snores about her went on unbroken. She raised her hand and wiped the perspiration from her eyes. She even ventured to look cautiously about.

After all, she must have slept heavily, for now besides the four beds there was a pallet on the floor, and at its top the firelight, which was lower now, but still strong, showed a tousled head and at its foot two bare feet. Jeb had come home from the dance.

Again she shut her eyes, but their lids were hot and feverish. The whole procession of the day's wretched occurrences paraded before her, and she wondered if these creatures were worth the effort she was making in their behalf.

What monstrous things might she have to face at the very outset of her mission? Could it be that the sleeping volcano of violence would select her coming as a cue for eruption, and that she, who had seen only the better things of life until today, must begin her work by looking at such a revolting drama?

Finally she fell again into that half sleep which dreams of wakefulness. It may have lasted minutes or hours, but suddenly she roused again with a start from a new nightmare and lay trembling under the oppression of a poignant foreboding. What was it that she had subconsciously heard or imagined? She was painfully wide awake in the stumping cabin. At last she was sure of a sound, low but instinct with warning.

Beardog was growling just outside the door.

Then, violently and without the preface of gradual approach—precisely as though horsemen had sprung from the earth—they clattered and beat past the front of the cabin a staccato thunder of wildly galloping hoofs and a rattle of scattered rocks. She felt an uncanny freezing of her marrow. Horses travel perilous and broken roads in that fashion only when their riders are in wild haste.

As abruptly as the drumbeat had come it died again into silence, and there was no diminuendo of hoofbeats receding into distance. The thing was weird and ghostly. She had not noticed in the weariness of her arrival at the cabin that the road ran deep in sand to the corner of the fence and that after fifty yards of rough and broken rock it fell away again into another sound-muffling stretch. She knew only that she was thoroughly frightened, and that whatever the noise was, it proclaimed hot and desperate haste.

Yet even in her terror she had moved only to turn her head and had opened her eyes cautiously and narrowly.

There was no sound in the cabin now; not even the sterioous breath of a snore. The fire flickered faintly and occasionally sent up from its white bed of ashes a dying spurt, before which the darkness fell back a little for the moment.

She could see that Fletch McNash had half risen in his bed. His head was partly turned in an attitude of intent listening, and his pose was as rigid as that of a bird-dog frozen on a point.

It had all been momentary, and as Juanita gazed she saw other figures sit uneasily, though no one spoke. The missionary lay still, but the woman's figure moved restlessly beneath the heaped-up comforter.

So, for a few moments, the strange and tense tableau held, and the girl, watching the householder's alert yet motionless pose, remembered him as he had hunched drunkenly over his plate a few hours ago. The two pictures were hard to reconcile.

Then, at some warning which her less acute ears failed to register, she saw Fletch McNash's right hand sweep outward toward the wall and come up gripping the rifle.

Still there was no word, but the eldest boy's head had risen from the pallet.

Keyed now to concert pitch, the girl held her body rigid, and through half-closed lids looked across the dim room. While she was so staring and pretending to sleep, there drifted from a long way off an insistent, animal-like yell with a peculiar quaver in its final note. She did not know that it was the famous McBriar rallying cry, and that trouble inevitably followed fast in the wake of its sounding. She knew only that it fitted in with her childhood's conception of the Indian's warwhoop. But she did know that in an instant after it had been borne along the wind she had seen a thing happen which she would have believed had she heard it from the lips of a narrator.

She saw in one breathing space the half-raised figure of Fletch McNash under the quilts of his bed, and that of young Jeb under the covers of his pallet. She saw in the next breathing space, with no realization of how it had happened, both of them crouched low at the center of the floor, the father's eyes glued to the front door, the son's to the back. The older man bent low, like a runner on his mark awaiting the starting signal. His right hand held the rifle at his front; his left lightly touched the floor with fingers spread to brace his posture, and his face was tensely upturned.

So, while she counted ten, father and son crouched in precisely similar poses, one covering the barred door at the front with a repeating rifle, the other holding his breath and watching the smoke of the gunpowder. The girl lay gazing helplessly up at the rafters and wondering what things happened out there in the grim, uncommunicative silence of the slopes.

With leveled pistol. No one spoke. No one moved, but the regular swelling breath of sleep had died, for every pair of lips in the place was holding its breath, bated.

Then came a fresh pounding of hoofs and scattering of gravel and a chorus of angry, incoherent voices sounded above the noise of flight—or was it pursuit? Whatever words were being shouted out there in the night were swallowed in the medley, except a wake of oaths that seemed to float behind.

The noise, like the other which had preceded it, died swiftly, but in the instant that it lasted Fletch McNash had lifted his left hand and brought his rifle to the "ready" and his son had instinctively thrust forward his cocked revolver.

For a full minute, perhaps, the girl in the bed had the picture of two figures bent low like bronze emblems of motionless preparation, yet not a syllable had been spoken, and when, from quite a distance beyond, there came the snap of a single shot, followed by the roar of a volley, they still neither spoke nor moved. But at last, as if by one impulse, they rose and turned to face each other.

Then, and then only, was there utterance of any sort inside the house.

In a voice so low that Juanita would not have heard it save that every sense was painfully alert. Fletch said to his son: "I reckon ther war's on again."

The boy nodded sullenly, and the father commanded in an almost inaudible undertone:

"Lay down."

The boy went back to his pallet and the father to his bed. For a long time there was dead silence, and then one by one they took up again their chorus of snores. Tomorrow might bring chaos but tonight offered sleep. Still the girl lay gazing helplessly up at the rafters and wondering what things happened out there in the grim, uncommunicative silence of the slopes.

Dinner Stories

The baby had finished his bottle of milk, and the proud mother thought it would be a good time to get him to say "Mamma," "Papa," and "Bye-bye."

"And what is that?" "The thin lining on my winter overcoat."

Cold Settled In His Back

"Foley Kidney Pills always give me prompt relief."—Ed Velton, Rogers, Neb.

"I take Foley Kidney Pills for backache, the result of working cold which settled in my back." Foley Kidney Pills always give me prompt relief and I can cheerfully recommend them.

The reason Foley Kidney Pills act so satisfactorily is because they neutralize and dissolve the poisonous waste matter that remains in the body after a cold settles in. It does this by doing its work properly in filtering and casting out from the system uric acid and other poisons.

Foley Kidney Pills follows in a few days and such symptoms as pain in the sides or back, stiff joints, sore muscles, rheumatism, too frequent action of the bladder at night, and other painful and annoying ailments disappear. Foley Kidney Pills contain no harmful ingredients. They are safe as well as quick acting.

FIGURES ON POTATO RAISING IN STATE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Wis., Sept. 30.—Wisconsin, Minnesota, Maine and Michigan are the four greatest potato producing states. Wisconsin alone markets up to 30,000,000 bushels per year, or about 26 per cent of the potatoes entering interstate trade.

These facts are contained in a statement prepared by H. C. Taylor of the university and issued as a bulletin by the experiment station. The statement shows that Wisconsin potatoes, grown largely in the counties of Portage, Waupaca, Marathon, Sauk, Oconto, Menominee and Adams counties, go to points scattered in western Pennsylvania to Missouri and from Illinois to Mississippi, but the largest purchase is Chicago.

Strange as it may seem this investigation showed that the dealers' warehouses in the potato belt would not hold more than one-third of the crop. It is more economical for the farmer to store his potatoes at home and bring them to the market when convenient.

Predictions are made in the bulletin that the farmers will receive higher prices if the potatoes are graded when brought into the market. During the past few years electric graders have been installed at many of the shipping points and the influence on the price is altered when the cars are loaded on the Chicago market is already apparent.

In the United States about 400,000,000 bushels of potatoes are annually produced. The total production for Wisconsin is estimated at about 32,000,000. Of the total potato crop entering interstate commerce, Maine produces 25 per cent; Michigan, 24 per cent; Wisconsin 20 per cent; Minnesota, 16 per cent and Colorado, 8 per cent.

The bulletin urges the sorting and grading potatoes by the farmers in order to secure higher prices, and suggests that the government has an important function to perform in studying the problems of marketing and educating the producer and the consumer.

BRITISH SYSTEM NOT PRACTICAL HERE—LANE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, Sept. 29.—Replying to American exponents of the British system of giving Cabinet officers seats in Congress, Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior Department told the United Press that in his estimation, the scheme was neither practicable nor advisable.

"Speaking for myself," said secretary Lane, "I would not have the time to use my seat in Congress if I had one. Cabinet positions in America are purely administrative positions as opposed to those in England, where the supervision of the various departments is mostly carried on by under-secretaries."

"At the estimation is now, we Cabinet officers have all the opportunity to make clear our views and wishes to Congress. In the first place, the recommendations in our annual reports state our positions to Congress as clearly and forcibly as we could state them if we addressed the members from the floor of the chamber. In the second place, we have ample opportunity to appear before the Congressional committees and speak on any measure within our province."

In addition to that, all bills concerning our various departments are submitted to us as soon as introduced for the purpose of getting our opinions on them. During the last session of Congress I wrote reports on 3,000 bills thus submitted. You can realize that I would have hardly had time to make three thousand speeches for or against them."

"Looking at the proposition from the point of view of the Congressmen and Senators themselves, we do not believe they care a damn for the plan, believe that the distinction between administration and legislation, as now recognized, is what they would continue to favor and insist upon."

ABOUT FOUR HUNDRED ACRES OF HEMP GROWN IN WISCONSIN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 1.—About 400 acres of hemp were grown in Wisconsin this year, according to reports received by Prof. Norgord, agricultural commissioner for Wisconsin. Experiments have been made with this crop for the past three years in regions around Waupun, Brandon, Beaver Dam, Burlington and Union Grove. Prof. Norgord says that it has been demonstrated that this crop will give a very yield to the farmer of from $45 to $75 an acre. Hemp produced in Wisconsin is used for the manufacture of cordage, wrapping twine, sails, carpets and coarse thread.

ENROLLMENT SHOWS A SLIGHT DECREASE

Fewer Students at Agricultural and Engineering College at State University.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Oct. 1.—A total of 4,751 students have enrolled in the University of Wisconsin for the new year, according to figures given out by the registrar. This is a decrease of fifteen students, as compared with the enrollment of 4,766 students at this time last year. The enrollment is, however, an increase of 435 over the registration of the fall of 1913.

Some 2,815 of last year's students have returned to the university this fall, together with 1,836 new students. This is an increase of 65 over the number of old students who returned last fall, and a decrease of 89 new students.

While several special courses show a marked increase this year, the colleges of agriculture and engineering report a smaller enrollment. The college of letters and science enrolled 172 more students this fall than in 1914. Its enrollment for the new year is 3,002, of whom 1,314 are new students. The new freshman class numbers about 300.

The college of agriculture, on the other hand, enrolled only 947 students, as compared with 1,074 of last year—a decrease of 127 students. This decrease is mainly in freshmen, since there are 121 fewer new students this year.

In the college of engineering the new enrollment is 648, as compared with the 716 of last year—a decrease of 68 students. This falling off is also largely in new students.

The music school now has 86 students, as compared with the 81 of last year. The course in pharmacy has 38—an increase of six students. The medical school enrolled 96, as compared with 91 last year. The course in journalism has had an increased enrollment. The course in home economics, however, has not grown; its new enrollment is 359, as compared with 261 last year.

USE APPLES IN MAKING MANY A TOOTHSOME DISH

Apples have long been, and still continue to be one of the best of fruits in season, and one of the chief delicacies of the American home. Here is the preparation of tooth-some desserts to tickle the palate and stimulate the appetite.

Wisconsin's 1915 fall apple crop is a bountiful one as a visit to almost any orchard will show. Even the gnarled trees of some old neglected orchards have produced a surprising heavy yield. Well-cared for trees, however, have sprouted their bottoms in apple bearing.

All this means good things to eat. Here are a few apple recipes that have been prepared by members of the department of home economics of the University of Wisconsin.

Field Bacon and Apples—Place bacon on fat in dripping pan. Drip bacon until fat is removed. Turn bacon to brown quite uniform. Remove bacon, add apples. Heat bacon drippings in pan, lay in the apples. Sprinkle with sugar, cook in the oven until brown. Serve bacon on platter surrounded with apples.

Apple Shortcake—To two cupsful flour add two teaspoons of baking powder, one tablespoon of sugar and one-half cupful of shortening. Mix as for baking powder biscuits. Fill pie plate with sliced apples, cover with the crust. Bake until apples are tender and crust is thoroughly baked. Turn on plate, dot with butter, sprinkle with sugar and cream. Serve with whipped cream.

Apple Sauce Cake—Mix one cupful apple sauce, unsweetened, with one cupful sugar, one-half cupful shortening, one teaspoonful cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful cloves, one-eighth teaspoonful salt, one cupful raisins, one teaspoonful soda and one and one-half cupful of more flour.

Steamed Apples—Pare and partly core apples. Do not remove the blossom end. Place apples in steamer and fill with butter, sugar and cinnamon, or sugar, cinnamon, and lemon, or candied ginger. Serve with mercury or whipped cream.

CHINESE HAVE DOUBT OF JAPAN'S POLICY IN SOUTH PACIFIC ISLES.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Peking, Sept. 26.—Chinese newspapers are commenting very seriously on the visit to Tokio of twenty-four Chinese from the South Pacific Islands taken over by Japan during the present war. Japan's declaration that she has no intention of annexing these islands is not believed by Chinese publicists. In speaking of the twenty chieftains from the South Pacific Archipelago, whom Japan is entertaining, the Peking Gazette says:

"This score of simple minded islanders will be personally conducted and officially received, and it would certainly not be in the least surprising if the results of all this were a demonstration of sincerity, frankness and friendliness on the part of these South Sea Cruises and Fridays, expressed in the shape of a petition begging the Mikado to be graciously pleased to make their coral isles part of his empire."

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat If Kidneys Feel Like Lead or Bladder Bothers You—Meat Forms Uric Acid.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

DIVISION OF FRENCH SOLDIERS TAKING PHOTOGRAPHS OF WAR.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Paris, Sept. 20.—One of the French soldiers killed at the taking of Metz, Alsace, belonged to a branch of the army service, organized after the outbreak of war, called the photographic section, which is now officially photographing the war. Its role is artistic, historical and educational. Although the staff is military it also is serving the foreign office and the department of public instruction.

General Joffre, M. M. Millerand, Minister of War, Delcasse, Minister of Foreign Affairs and Sarraut, Minister of Public Instruction, aided by the committee of foreign affairs of the Chamber of Deputies and the foreign office collaborated in its organization. The operators are all mobilized men, and, as at Metzeral, are on the fighting line, taking pictures which, with orders, reports, plans and other documents will hereafter constitute the historical section of the General Staff.

For the fine art section and the educational department it is intended thus to make a complete collection of photographs of destroyed or damaged public monuments of great artistic value, and in general to furnish a sort of illustrated annex to the history of the war for the instruction of future generations.

These official photographers during the seven days bombardment of Metzeral took three thousand negatives.

A sales department has been organized to put on the market copies of all the photographs that the censor authorizes to be duplicated.

TEN SHILLING NOTES MAY REPLACE BRITISH HALF SOVEREIGN PIECE.

BOB ACRES BURSTS INTO PRINT AGAIN

DISCUSSES WISCONSIN POLITICS FROM REPUBLICAN POINT OF VIEW.

TALKS OF POSSIBILITIES

That LaFollette May Announce Himself as Wisconsin's Favorite Son For the Presidential Nomination in Near Future.

(By Bob Acres.)

One of a series of articles written exclusively for the Janesville Gazette on the Wisconsin Political situation.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 1.—Of course, I could date this Milwaukee, Madison or a half dozen places in the state but I prefer to give it the Madison date line. I spent my boyhood and a good portion of my grown years in Wisconsin's capital. I saw the state transferred from the republican to the democratic regime when George W. Peck took control of affairs and former Governor Howard was beaten in the little seen gubernatorial election. It soon turned back to the republican ranks again after four years when the epidemic of democratic experiment was over. Yes, I can go even further back and tell you of the "granger" campaigns when the state went wild but that is too far back to interest anyone living today. I want to talk about the present and the future. Life is the problem we are facing in the future. I am not any hide-bound sort of an individual that I can not see any good in any person who does not agree with me politically, religiously or on the war. Every person has a right to their own private opinion so why try and convert them when it is a useless task.

Speaking of politics I have found lots of men the past few months who have always considered the university as their origin and its inception in Robert M. LaFollette. They forgot the days when Phillips Sawyer ruled the republican party and defeated Lucia Fairchild for United States senator because a member of his family laughed at the joke that Sawyer spelled Mayor of Oshkosh as "Maire of Oshkosh." Those were good old days in the past tense. Now, however, the relatives of LaFollette had all decided that they do not mean to say too much for an old man who is often too garrulous but still I want to drive home the fact that LaFollette men in this state have not lost hope of regaining control of both state and national patronage and driving out of office the conservatives who were out by the grace of God and the will of the franchised voters of the state at the last state election, unless radical steps are taken.

I am telling you something. LaFollette is to pose as Wisconsin's chosen son for the presidential nomination. He hopes to delude the voters of the state into the belief that he has a real chance to be nominated at the next national republican convention and when an editor is asked what he thinks of the state if such were the fact he will say that he is to be nominated to the state if such were the fact. He will select his team mates most carefully. There will be Lieutenant Governor Birrell for one, Otto Bossard for another and Skogmo for a third. He would like to have Lenroot but he does not trust him as delegate at large. He will be a district delegate. On the list will be carefully chosen men who will be tried and true men. Men who follow the leader without question.

This is all right but it means a whole lot when you stop and consider it as a whole. This cry of LaFollette as the favorite son is going to collect a lot of votes. This gossip that LaFollette has already set in motion that he is standing for the "deer people" is running up. His fight with McGovern, Teigen and others is helping him with the men who thought him sincere in his past campaign. He does not have to attack the Phillip regime to get votes. He can turn back to his old source of capitalization—the railroads. He is afraid to tackle the tariff proposition, his Seaman's bill, but the poor railroads are always welcome meat for his program of re-election. In fact, he will have hard work to turn his attention to the state administration and find some flaw in which to insert his "pick" of objection. I am not a pessimist but I am an optimist. I see lots of good that is going to come from the present state administration's efforts in behalf of the taxpayer and so does LaFollette but he does not dare say so.

I am going to say one thing right here. The republicans—by republicans I mean republicans not renegades, Blaine republicans and others of false gods—expect to win this next state election. They must believe that Emanuel La Phillip again becomes a candidate for Governor. No one else in the conservation republican ranks can take up his mantle and finish his work. If he has any aspirations to be run for the United States senate he must abandon it. The taxpayers—the voters—the ones who pay the shot—insist he again be a candidate for Governor and announce himself as such before the delegates to the national republican convention are elected next April.

Just to prove this assertion I am going to quote with your permission one of the dispatches sent out by the LaFollette radicals to the faithful press that supports him blindly right or wrong. It shows what is in the wind clearer than I can write it and explain the whole situation.

Read it carefully, and you will see what I mean. It is dated Madison and says:

can national convention from Wisconsin.
"Gov. Phillip has already laid his plans for the securing of a conservative delegation. At a recent conference in Milwaukee many of the plans were talked over and it was agreed to have a conservative delegation in the field."

You ask how you are to combat this foolishness? Well, I will tell you. Get behind the republicans who are planning to hold a state convention and place a ticket for delegates to the national convention in nomination. Do not hesitate to show your true colors as a republican. You are welcome regardless of my previous confession of political servitude. I must confess that while I have not approved of LaFollette and his doctrines I have voted for him every time he ran for office from the day when he first appeared in the political horizon as district attorney candidate until he was last voted for to the United States senate.

"There is a question not of sentiment but of good, sound judgment. It is a problem you must decide for yourself. You know what the reform wave has done your pocket-book in the way of increased taxes? You know what a fight there was in the state legislature by the "tax eaters" to make a further raid on the state treasury, incidentally your pocket-book again. So beware and don't be blinded by smooth politicians against your better judgment."

TIME ALL OCCUPIED AT ROOKIES' CAMP

John J. O'Connor, Janesville Young Man, Writes of Civilian Military Training Camp.

It is little time that the rookies at Fort Shafter have for anything else than their lessons in the art of national defense, according to John J. O'Connor, a Janesville young man, who has written an interesting letter to the Gazette regarding the camp. From 5:30 in the morning until "lights out" at 9:30 at night, the rookie's time is occupied. O'Connor has the following to say:

Military Camp.

Fort Sheridan, Ill., Sept. 27, 1916.

To the Editor Janesville Daily Gazette:

The newness and strangeness of the great western civilian camp for business and professional men has worn off. Wonderful progress has been accomplished and the earnestness of the men here is evident. They seem to be still greater achievement. The men are here to learn in the short time available enough so that should war be declared they could give their training, intelligence and lives, if necessary, to preserve the sacred ideals of our country.

The camp covers an area of a square mile and is a city of tents. There are 500 civilian soldiers and 250 regulars. Six men are quartered in a tent and each tent has a small stove. Despite the fact that the rain Sunday night was severe and today there is a raw, cold wind blowing off the lake, we have been extremely comfortable.

Revolts blow at 5:50 a. m. and from that time until 9:30 p. m. when taps sound "lights out," we have not time to rest. We have eight solid hours of drill and three lectures, covering various military features, each day.

How little we Americans know or care about the position of the United States among the nations of the world! How totally inadequate is our present system of national defense to meet any emergency that may arise. We are a peaceful nation and yet we are only beginners. Think then how much is dependent upon the military man and the citizen soldier, who are the only ones with this knowledge.

One officer, commenting upon our nation's unpreparedness, stated that at best the United States could put in the field 15,000 regular soldiers and 15,000 militia. What is an army of 30,000 men in this year of 1916, when that number of men are eliminated in a single day's combat? In California alone it is estimated that there are 25,000 trained Japanese soldiers, and yet we could only put in the field 15,000 trained regulars. "Gentlemen," said Lieutenant Irvine in his lecture on "National Militia," "it is you to whom we look to develop the raw material that will win the war for us." The regular army are being brigaded.

The great keynote of the camp is efficiency. Hard work and rigid discipline is moulding the men into very creditable performers. It is edifying and beautiful, the great spirit in this large body of men who have given up their time and business for their country and their love of patriotism. They prove to the world that the spirit of American manhood that preserved the Union in '61 that conquered the yellow standard of the Standard in '65, is not dead and still is the prevailing heart-beat even in this so-called age of commercialism.

EXAMINATIONS FOR RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS TO OXFORD

Wisconsin Candidates Will Be Examined at Madison on October 5th and 6th.

The qualifying examinations for candidates for the Rhodes scholarships will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 5 and 6, in the two states. In Wisconsin the examination will be held at Madison at the state university. Frey among those who pass the examination one will be chosen in each state to enter Oxford University, England, in October, 1916. The scholarships are for three years and each entity holds to £1,500 per year.

Any man who is between the ages of 19 and 23 years, is unmarried and has completed at least the sophomore year at a recognized degree-granting university, may take the examination in any one of the states listed for this year; if he passes the examination he may apply for appointment to the committee of selection in either the state or his residence or the state in which he has completed a large part of his education.

Contrary to the general impression, it is not necessary to have a knowledge of Greek in order to be examined and, if successful, to be appointed to a Rhodes scholarship. Candidates may, if they choose, omit the Greek papers at the qualifying examination. It can be a candidate of selection appoints a committee which has not taken the Greek examination and has failed to pass it; such an appointment has until September of the following year in which to prepare in Greek and pass the Oxford entrance examinations in the subject.

Virtually this law requires that there must be a progressive Republican candidate for president in Wisconsin. The progressives of the progressive Republicans are not to be handicapped at the start. Originally it was generally believed that Governor Philip would lead the last of conservative delegates and that Senator LaFollette would head a similar list of progressives. But with the discovery of this legal tangle it is certain that unless the progressives of Wisconsin can agree to support Cummins or other progressive Senator LaFollette again become a candidate for president. This is generally conceded in progressive circles as one of the sure ways to secure a progressive delegation in the Repub-

HEAD OF EVERY COMMITTEE IN LOWER HOUSE OF CONGRESS AT NEXT SESSION TO COME FROM SOUTH; NORTHERNERS COMPLAIN

The slate of committee chairmanships of the house of representatives, as tentatively made up, gives everything to the south, and leaves the north, the middle west and the Pacific coast states absolutely without representation. According to this slate, the following men among other southerners will hold important committees: Carter Glass of Virginia, banking and currency; J. T. Lloyd of Missouri, accounts; Henry D. Flood of Virginia, foreign affairs; J. L. Burnett of Alabama, immigration and naturalization; E. Y. Webb of North Carolina, judiciary; James Hay of Virginia, military affairs; Claude Kitchin of North Carolina, ways and means; W. C. Adamson of Georgia, interstate and foreign commerce. Some dissatisfaction with this slate is being heard in the north and west.

CONGRESS CAMPAIGN IS NOW THE TOPIC IN STATE POLITICS

Bob La Follette Preparing His Fire-Works?—Gov. Phillip Recognized as Opponent Leader.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 1.—Candidates for congress and the United States senatorship continues to be a topic of great interest in the capitol. One of the engrossing topics is what party Gov. F. E. McGuire will take in the campaign. Senator La Follette is of course a candidate for re-election. He is at his office every day, examining the laws passed by the last legislature, governmental and financial reports, preparing a speech which he will use this fall. The senator still insists that before he returns to congress he will not make speeches in every section of the state. The progressive state that after Senator La Follette has made a tour of the state they will be in a better position to determine what will be the program.

Meantime Gov. Phillip, who is recognized as the leader against the La Follette program is busy at the county fair renewing his acquaintance with the electorate of the state. The early and aggressive campaign of the government radicals has not been forgotten. In his lecture on "National Militia" he said to the audience that the La Follette forces will help to break in the coming campaign if their entire program is to be carried through.

In several of the congressional districts of the state there will be little opposition to the present incumbents at the primaries. This is considered true with respect to Congressman H. A. Cooper of Racine; L. L. Lenroot of Superior; E. E. Brown of Waupaca and J. E. Beck of Chippewa.

There are rumors that Congressman John M. Nelson of the Madison district may be opposed at the primaries by Senator Platt Whitman of Highland. Congressman Frey is to have opposition, it is said, in Judge Julius C. Gilbertson of Eau Claire. In 1912 Judge Gilbertson was a candidate for the nomination and the race was so close that the outcome could not be determined for several days.

Just what may happen to Congressman W. J. Cary and W. H. Stafford of Milwaukee is hard to tell. Non-partician politics in Milwaukee has been so strange that it is difficult to predict anything.

MYSTERIES OF A PACK OF CARDS

Published by Request.

A private soldier by the name of Richard Lee was taken before a magistrate recently for playing cards during divine services. The sergeant that a sergeant commanded the soldiers at church, and when the parson had read the prayers, he took the text. Those who had a Bible took it out, but this soldier had neither Bible nor common prayer book, but pulling out a pack of cards, he spread them before him. He just looked at one card and then another. The sergeant of the company saw him and said, "Richard, put the cards up, this is no place for them."

"Never mind that," said Richard.

When the service was over, the constable took Richard before the mayor.

"Well," says the mayor, "what have you brought the soldier here for?"

"For playing cards in church."

"For what, soldier, what have you to say for yourself?"

"Much, sir, I hope."

"Very good. If not, I will punish you more than man was ever punished."

GERMAN HOUSEHOLDS CONTRIBUTE COPPER FOR MILITARY USE

Metal is Gleaned by Government From Every Possible Source—Pay 43 Cents a Pound.

Berlin, Oct. 1.—In spite of the fact that copper imports have practically ceased, it can be said at the outset that, according to the estimates of the official War Metal company, there are in Germany vast quantities of copper in manufactured form and in such quantities as to insure the military demands for many years to come, says the weekly report of the American Association of Commerce and Trade in Berlin.

It is figured, therefore, by the authorities that if present raw supplies in addition to increased domestic production should fail to cover the demand, undoubtedly a number of obsolete articles of copper, brass and nickel used in households and industries and the like shall be confiscated and paid for in order to make them available for stated purposes.

Purdy Precautionary Measures.

These precautionary measures have now been enacted by the authorities, and, although the new order may at first glance seem to be rather revolutionary, it may be said that such articles only are affected as may easily be replaced by substitutes made of iron or steel.

The exchange of articles of copper, brass and nickel for the substitute of iron will, of course, require a long time if such exchange shall take place with little inconvenience to owners, for which reasons systematic release and refection are to be organized and therefore the early introduction of the above measure.

It is estimated by the authorities that the volume of manufactured copper in Germany amounts to more than 2,000,000 tons, which volume alone would suffice to cover the military demand for more than ten years.

part of these supplies will be found in private households and those of restaurants, hotels, etc., while the other large part is being used for roofing purposes. The largest quantity, however, is stored in various manufactured forms within the many industries and especially in the electrical industries.

Vast Stores of Copper Available.

The copper articles in households can be replaced without particular difficulty, and it is believed that the appeal to the people has met with unequalled response, as within the last few days enormous quantities of copper in all sorts of manufactured form have been delivered.

Different, however, is the situation with the manufacturing industries, and in order to arrive at exact figures as to amount and location of the vast supplies a census a part of the manufactured copper located may be utilized for military purposes.

The exchange will cause no difficulties in such industrial establishments where apparatus or vessels of copper can be dispensed with, be it for reason of reduced output or otherwise, as full value will be paid for all articles thus acquired.

In other cases copper material can be removed only, in order to prevent harm to the economic state of affairs, when at the same time a substitute is installed—as, for instance, in replacing copper wire by such made of steel or zinc, copper stills by such as enameled iron, copper pipes by such as iron or cast iron, the increasing operation of electric works, which will result in reduced voltage, which will in turn change the nature of conductors, or in changing direct current operation to three phase, in joint operation of electric works, etc.

Of course inconvenience in such methods cannot be avoided, but there is no doubt that the good will of all concerned will lead to the desired aim. Furthermore, there are undoubtedly a number of obsolete articles of copper, brass and nickel used in households and industries and the like shall be confiscated and paid for in order to make them available for stated purposes.

Articles Affected by Metal Order.

It is ruled that metal blanks will be distributed after Sept. 25 to be distributed in accordance with rules previously issued.

But parties or individuals who deposit their copper prior to that date are relieved of this duty. The following articles are affected by the order:

Household utensils of copper, brass and nickel such as dishes, plates, pots, spittoons, etc., which are articles of art, door knobs, fittings, teakettles, coffee pots, etc.

For household goods which have been voluntarily deposited before Sept. 25 the following prices are being paid:

Copper goods without fittings, 43 cents per pound; with fittings, 33 cents.

For brass goods without fittings, 33 cents per pound; with fittings, 23 cents.

From Suffering to Satisfaction

By REV. B. B. SUTCLIFFE
Assistant Superintendent of Men, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT—Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace. Mark 5:22-34.

The incident of the healing of this woman illustrates in a very simple way the five steps which bring the sinner from suffering to satisfaction.

First step—Her need of Jesus. There was no help for her either in herself or in others. She had suffered for 12 years, had tried many physicians, had spent all she had in attempting to rid herself of this disease, ... and her physicians could not find what was "nothing bettered but rather grew worse." She was helpless and therefore she was hopeless. What she needed was this Great Physician who alone could heal her. What a true picture of the sinner striving against sin. How very soon salvation would come to many if they could only see how hopeless and helpless their condition is apart from him, the Great Physician.

Second Step—Her Approach to Jesus.

When she heard of him she came to him. Would that all might be brought to Jesus as simply as this. Suppose she had merely gone to Peter or one of the other leaders among the Lord's followers? Would Peter have been able to do her any good? Would he have been any better than her physicians? And what more can any minister today do than simply point the way to Jesus? Who would think the journey's end was reached just because the signpost was in sight? The true minister is but a signpost pointing the way to Jesus as the only one who can heal the soul's disease. And neither did this woman merely go to the crowd around Jesus. She must necessarily go to the crowd, for the people were thronging round him, but it was Jesus himself to whom she went. Too many are satisfied today when they are merely with the crowd that surrounds the Lord. That is, they deem it sufficient if they are members of some church, mingling with the people of God. But neither can the church, anymore than the ministry, give salvation to a soul. The church and her ministers are set for the spiritual help and growth of the Lord's people; the Savior is Jesus alone.

Third Step—Her Touch With Jesus.

She might not bear him, but it was necessary to touch him and touch him she did. After her long experience with many physicians there would not be, perhaps, great faith behind the hand she stretched out to touch him. But it is not great faith that brings the blessing, but the actual coming in touch with the one who has all power. It is not the faith, but the object of faith that works the miracle. But there must be faith, be it small or great, to touch Jesus for one's own need before the power of Jesus can operate. A small wire can carry the power of a large dynamo, but there must be contact. So one can be very near to Jesus and yet go unsaved if there be no personal touch for one's own salvation.

Fourth Step—Her Healing by Jesus.

It came immediately upon her touching him. The moment her hand reached out and touched him, that moment "she felt in her body that she was healed of that plague." There was no waiting, no long period of convalescence, no gradual passing of the plague, but at once there came relief and she was whole. So it is when a soul is saved. The moment that soul seeing Jesus as the only Savior, and believing in his power and willingness to save, reaches out the hand of faith for the personal need, that moment salvation comes.

Fifth Step—Her Confession of Jesus.

Why did Jesus bring her out before that crowd to tell her story? Because she would never have heard the word "daughter" from his lips nor would she ever have heard the words "go in peace" if there had not been this public confession. There are many who have believed in Jesus to the saving of their souls who have no satisfaction and peace concerning their sins, because they are held back from making an open confession of their faith. If you have believed and are saved, tell the story and you will hear him say to you as he said to this woman, "go in peace." If it be that you are not saved, he says to you, "him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out." He has the power and the willingness to save you just now if you but trust him.

When the Heart is Weary.

When the heart is weary by the hard conflict of life it is well sometimes to withdraw to the solitude for rest and inspiration. There may come peace and courage and renewed strength; but it will not do to stay there, thinking to serve God. The service of God is the service of one's fellow men.—H. C. McDougal.

Elijah in NAEOH'S VINEYARD (THE STORY)

The incident of Naboth's vineyard is one of the most striking in the whole range of literature. On the only background of this foul plot the characters of Ahab and Jezebel, Naboth and Elijah stand clearly outlined.

It is a study in ethics and psychology. But the incident has a larger significance—a political and religious meaning. It is related because it was the immediate cause of the fall of Ahab and his house and the great revolution which followed. He who looks upon it as a mere personal affair wholly misses the mark, largely reading judgment's infliction on the sacred annals. It illustrates in most vivid manner the utter and despicable moral worthlessness of the dynasty then reigning. Ahab asked Naboth to do a thing which he knew to be contrary to the Levitical law bearing upon the tenure of property. Instead of honoring him for keeping his word, he lifted him up, not, however, openly, but in the ambush of his political conspiracy. He broke the Decalogue in two particulars. He coveted and killed! In a cowardly way he balked and refused his food like a spoilt child crying for the moon. His manner was unmanly as well as unkingly. His ruse succeeded when his uniquely queen asked the cause. It was the king's own dimness which led him to believe that he had been duped by proxy. He turned the affair over to his unscrupulous wife, perfectly satisfied that her devilish cunning would compass the desired end. He made immediate haste to avail himself of the fruits of his crime.

For this foul deed Ahab put a period to his personal probation as well as to that of his dynasty. For a brief time and on the very scene of his supposed triumph, Ahab's Nemesis, Elijah, appears to speak his doom and that of his house. In this circumstance Naboth stands forth as a type and fruit of the silent and steady reformation which was revealed to the prophet in the "still small voice" of God. Those who imagine that Naboth's refusal of the king's request was based upon religious scruples are entirely wrong. Naboth's reason was a religious one. It was contrary to the law of God as given by Moses to alienate for any consideration the property originally designated to the family by the lot, the casting of which God himself determined. It did not matter to Naboth that this law was so generally neglected. In fact that was additional reason for his regarding it. His course would be exemplary and commendable and all the more so. He was perfectly aware of his personal peril in refusing the request of such a king as Ahab. But his first allegiance was to the King of Heaven. He will obey God rather than man. If he die, his death will hasten the reformation which he desired above life itself. History does not afford a more genuine instance of martyrdom than that of Naboth. His name must be inscribed on the muster-roll of the noble army of martyrs.

As the chief executive of the Hebrew commonwealth Ahab ought to have been rejoiced to find in those degenerate days a citizen who sincerely revered the law of his country and loved his patriotism.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN

Thirty centuries later history records two incidents strangely analogous. One occurred in Germany, the other in France. That the final outcome of both is in striking contrast to the story of Naboth is token and gauge of advancing civilization.

Next to the garden of Sans Souci palace stands the wind-mill whose wide arms obstructed a monarch's view, and with grinding annoyed him. Frederick the Great used to pay the miller's price. The latter descended to sell, saying that he had inherited it from his father and that it was the means of his living. The king in anger ordered the mill razed. The miller said, "Sire! there are courts of law in Prussia before which even your Majesty can be cited." The court ordered the king to rebuild the mill and indemnify the miller. The king submitted gracefully, saying that he was glad to find that there were still some laws and upright judges. Some generations later a descendant offered the mill to a new king, reminding him of his ancestor's desire to possess it. He received an autograph letter addressed, "My dear Neighbor," saying that as long as there was a descendant to operate it, the mill ought to remain in the family, and adding that the mill was part of its history. After covering the mill's elevation with a loan, this unique letter was subscribed, "Consider me always your affectionate neighbor." This is a case of Naboth's vineyard with a difference.

Jezabel's methods seem to have maintained in the first trial of Captain Dreyfuss of the French army. Racial and religious prejudice was at the root of it. Testimony was presented. Fortunately capital punishment was not inflicted else the injustice could not have been righted. Zola's chief laurel will be that he exposed this legal conspiracy and stood by ready to share the unfortunate soldier's disgraceful punishment. It is the glory of modern jurisprudence that the decree of the trial court was finally set aside and that Dreyfuss reinstated to rank and honor serving his country in the field today. This is a modern analogue to Jezabel's odious career, but with a happier denouement.

There is another modern analogue to Ahab in the making of the palace and park at Versailles. Louis XIV extorted a hundred million dollars from an already impoverished people. He snatched bread from hungry peasants to rear this gigantic folly of the Bourbons. His people were gnawing roots while he dined in state. When told that his people had no bread, he answered derisively, "Then let them eat cake!" Imperial pride in palaces and gardens seems an inevitable cause of trouble. An English statesman striking the ground at Kensington cried, "Here is where we lost the American colonies!" George III's ambition to give his new queen a handsome country-seat led to the Stamp Act. "Proclaim a fast!" In those words Jezabel stole the liberty of heaven to serve the devil in. She gave the air of religion to her proceeding.

The incident showed Ahab the limitation of his power. Jezabel turned the barb in his bosom when she asked, "Dost thou not govern the Kingdom of Israel?"

Ahab was a passive profligate another's crime. There was his disolute meanness. He was afraid to match his desire with an act of his own. The story is the most powerful sermon against covetousness.

Anthony Trollope, the one hundredth anniversary of whose birth is being celebrated this year, is one of the most remarkable of the thousand and one great writers of the world of letters affords. His working aphorism was "Constancy in labor will conquer all difficulties." He did not believe in spasmodic effort. He said: "The hare loses more time in glorifying himself for a quick spurt than suffices for the tortoise to make half his journey." Exactly the same principle applies to the laborious life. Individual and collective continuity of effort produce the largest and best results.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT CHURCH MEETING

Nearly Four Hundred Enjoy Reception and Program Thursday Evening at Presbytery

in Church.

More than three hundred and sixty-five members and friends of the First Presbyterian church attended the informal reception and program which was given last evening at the church. The occasion proved to be a success. The church was filled with the fragrance of the delightful and successful fellowship hours which the church and congregation has enjoyed in many months.

The program of musical selections proved a most excellent one and each participant was rewarded with hearty applause. The church was decorated with a profusion of brilliantly hued fall flowers which lend to the atmosphere of the gathering. The choir, solo, organ, and entire front of the auditorium was hung with dahlias, asters, asparagus ferns and hydrangeas. In the Sunday school rooms where refreshments were served, potted palms were the decorations.

Courage of Despair.

A schoolboy's composition furnished the following: "The courage of the Turk is explained by the fact that a man with more than one wife is more willing to face death than if he had only one."

"By buying in larger quantities you could save fully 10 per cent on the cost of your groceries."

A retail grocer was endeavoring to show one of his customers one way he might reduce the cost of living without depriving or inconveniencing himself or family.

Several of his former patrons were finding the wholesale method of buying much easier and far less wasteful and were getting more groceries for the same money.

The experience of one customer seemed to be more or less typical of many others.

After living "out of paper sacks" for a number of weeks, this farmer became dissatisfied with his system and asked the grocer for his suggestions.

A little study of the records showed that in two and a half months he had bought 374 different items—an average of five and half separate purchases for each day the stores were open.

"During this time he had bought lard 16 times, in amounts ranging from 16 cents, to 55 cents, with 29 cents as the average. The grocer then convinced him that by buying lard in 60-pound tubs he could have saved 3 cents on each pound. For $3.50 he could have bought the same amount of lard for which he paid $4.37.

"The farmer bought sugar ten times, in amounts from 25 cents to $1.60; a total of $6.75 worth. By buying in 100-pound sacks at $6.40 a hundred, one and one-half cents a pound would have been saved.

"Thirty single cans of fish and meats was the count. Fourteen of these were salmon at 18 cents a can. According to the grocer, the farmer would have saved 3 cents on each can by buying in case lots. Thus a saving of 42 cents on salmon alone would have been made.

"Two dollars and thirteen cents worth of crackers were bought at 13 times, in lots of from 8 to 23 cents.

By the box, crackers are 7½ cents a pound; at retail, 10 cents a pound.

"Soap and washing powder were bought nineteen times. One cent a cake have been saved by buying soap by the box.

"Oil was bought sixteen times, in two gallon lots. By buying in five gallon lots, one cent a gallon would have been saved.

"Three dollars and four cents was spent for cheese, at fourteen different times, by buying a small cheese; 3 cents a pound would have been saved.

"The entire grocery bill was $84.41, on which the grocer estimated that about $5 could have been saved by buying wholesale. This would have been enough to buy two pairs of shoes, or add a barrel of flour to the larder."
